
Summer issue of Journal of Retirement is released

By Editorial Staff Thu, Aug 13, 2015

The current issue includes articles by David Blanchett, Moshe Milevsky, Olivia Mitchell and Mark Warshawsky, among others.

The Journal of Retirement, vol. 3, no. 1, Summer 2015, is now available online, according to the journal's publisher, Institutional Investor Journals. The articles in the new issue include:

- "Illustrating Retirement Income for Defined Contribution Plan Participants: A Critical Analysis of the Department of Labor," by Mark J. Warshawsky.
- "A Glide Path for Target Date Fund Annuitization," by Moshe A. Milevsky, Huaxiong Huang, and Virginia R. Young.
- "Dynamic Choice and Optimal Annuitization," by David Blanchett.
- "Social Security's Individual Value and Aggregate Burden," by Liqun Liu, Andrew J. Rettenmaier, and Thomas R. Saving.
- "Minimizing the Risk of Opportunity Loss in the Social Security Claiming Decision," by Brian J. Alleva.
- "Retirement and the Great Recession," by Alan L. Gustman, Thomas L. Steinmeier, and Nahid Tabatabai.
- "Financial Literacy and Economic Outcomes: Evidence and Policy Implications," by Olivia S. Mitchell and Annamaria Lusardi.
- "Financial Planning and the Reality and Requirements of Retirees with Private Pensions," by Liam Foster.

© 2015 RIJ Publishing LLC. All rights reserved.