Ten Life Principles (In no particular order)

1. It is better to be the House than the Gambler.
2. Weak people do the most damage; don't rely on them.
3. On rare occasions you will be the arbiter of someone's fate; choose kindness.
4. When a stranger puts money on a table and urges you to take it, promising that no one will know, don't take the money.
5. Assumptions about the motives of other people are rarely accurate.
6. The difference between adults and children is that adults think ahead.
7. Don't decide on impulse; sleep on it.
8. Time spent in preparation is never wasted.
9. Failure is a prerequisite of success.
10. Judge people not by their achievements but by how well they've 'played the hand they were dealt.'
