Vanguard gathered just over $6 billion in the quarter ($60 billion YTD) to lead all fund companies. American Funds, PIMCO, Columbia and Janus all saw outflows of more than $10 billion each, according to Morningstar data.

U.S.-equity mutual funds enjoyed their highest monthly inflow since January, gathering $10.5 billion in October 2013. International-equity funds did even better—leading all category groups with inflows of $12.2 billion, according to Morningstar, Inc.

Total mutual fund inflows, at $17.8 billion for the month, were tempered by continued outflows from taxable- and municipal-bond funds tempered overall inflows. Morningstar estimates net flow by computing the change in assets not explained by the performance of the fund.

Highlights from Morningstar's report on mutual fund flows:

- Active U.S.-equity funds had strong monthly inflows for only the third time in 2013, failing to fulfill expectations of a “great rotation” into active strategies after years of passive-fund flow dominance.
- But outflows from active equity funds are only $15.3 billion for the year to date, compared with outflows of $131.5 billion in 2012.
- Foreign large blend was the top category for inflows; equity categories took the top three spots in terms of inflow by category.
- October was the first month since March that bank loan, nontraditional bond, or world bond did not lead all categories in flows, and the first time in more than a year that the bank-loan category wasn't in the top five.
- Inflation-protected bond funds lost $4.8 billion in October. The average fund in the category has lost 5.9% year to date.
- Vanguard dominated inflows at the provider level in October, collecting new $6 billion overall and inflows of $2.1 billion for Vanguard Total Stock Market Index Fund.
- Vanguard's market share of mutual fund assets stands at 17.5%, up from 15.6% three years ago. American Funds' market share has fallen to 10% from 12% over the same period. PIMCO's share has dropped to 5.1 percent after peaking at 6.1 percent in late 2012.
